.A Landmark Victory for BY Physicians and Patients – and the First Amendment – AAPS v. ABIM

A precedent-setting ruling in favor of the First Amendment was issued today by the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit. This influential Court established the right to object in court to censorship of physicians' speech on topics ranging from government Covid policies to abortion, stated AAPS General Counsel Andrew Schlafly.

The Court held that there is a constitutional “right to hear” that enables a sponsor of conferences, such as Plaintiff Association of American Physicians & Surgeons Educational Foundation (“AAPS”), to challenge censorship that chills presentations at its events. “This landmark ruling will be cited nationwide for decades to come,” Mr. Schlafly observed.

AAPS sued three medical specialty boards for their threatened actions against the board certifications of physicians because of speaking out on medical controversies. Physicians earned and need these board certifications in order to practice medicine in most hospitals and remain in most insurance networks, as Mr. Schlafly pointed out.

Defendants are the American Board of Internal Medicine (“ABIM”), the American Board of Family Medicine (“ABFM”), and the American Board of Obstetrics & Gynecology (“ABOG”). In addition, Alejandro Mayorkas, Biden’s Homeland Security Secretary, is a defendant due to alleged government interference with freedom of speech.

The Fifth Circuit also invalidated Galveston Local Rule 6, by which that federal district court has infringed on plaintiffs' right to amend their lawsuits. The Fifth Circuit agreed with AAPS that this district court rule is contrary to the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, and thus must be voided.

"AAPS can now pursue its claim against censorship by the Biden Administration," AAPS Executive Director Jane Orient, M.D., stated.

Fifth Circuit Judge James Ho agreed with the panel majority on the key issues and wrote separately to decry attempts by some today to impose censorship on others. "In America, we don't fear disagreement—we embrace it. We persuade—we don't punish. We engage in conversation—not cancellation," Judge Ho wrote.

"We know how to disagree with one another without destroying one another. Or at least that's how it's supposed to work," Judge Ho added as he sided fully with this lawsuit against censorship.

"With this landmark ruling in favor of the First Amendment, our country can end improper censorship of viewpoints," Andrew Schlafly stated.

CONCLUSION about CANCER INDUSTRY:

Our chances of surviving a cancer diagnosis is increased 400% by simply saying "NO" to useless cancer screening tests and mainstream cancer treatments like .surgery, chemotherapyand radiation therapy.

Men and other mammals live longer if they are castrated, says researcher

Said researcher is Cat Bohannon, who has quite a way with words when she discusses the male anatomy. Bohannon wonders aloud to an audience why men insist on keeping their bodies intact. Bohannon said castration was a "way to make male mammals live longer," and that castrated men lived longer than their "regularly balled peer."

Additional research is needed, as we should expect to see men with leftist political beliefs have significantly longer lifespans if this is the case.

There's no word on whether Bohannon considers HER BREASTS potentially cancerous "death bags." Probably not, as the title of her book suggests a distinct female chauvinism: Eve: How The Female Body Drove 200 Million Years of Human Evolution.

– Watch out boys, here she comes:

Speaking at a festival, Bohannon "wonders" aloud my men insist on "smuggling two little death nuggets" through their whole lives. She'd likely say she was posing a question about why evolution designed the male reproductive system to have a shortening effect on men's life span. But it beggars belief that Bohannon does not understand that evolution only "cares" about lifespans long enough to complete reproduction. Is anyone else smelling vindictive feminism?

Daily Marijuana Users Outnumber Daily Drinkers In US, Survey Finds

The AP (5/22, Johnson) reports,

“Millions of people in the U.S. report using marijuana daily or nearly every day, according to an analysis of national survey data, and those people now outnumber those who say they are daily or nearly-daily drinkers of alcohol.” Although “alcohol is still more widely used...2022 was the first time this intensive level of marijuana use overtook daily and near-daily drinking, said the study’s author, Jonathan Caulkins, a cannabis policy researcher at Carnegie Mellon University.” Caulkins said, “A good 40% of current cannabis users are using it daily or near daily, a pattern that is more associated with tobacco use than typical alcohol use.” These findings were published in Addiction.

The Hill (5/22, Nazzaro) reports, “About 17.7 million people in 2022 recorded daily or nearly daily use of marijuana, compared to the 14.7 million who reported the same habits for alcohol, marking the first time in the past 30 years that daily marijuana use exceeded alcohol use, according to an analysis published Wednesday that looks at data from the National Survey on Drug Use and Health.” Additionally, “from 1992 to 2022, there was a 15-fold increase in the rate of daily or near daily use marijuana use, the analysis found.”

Very interesting and very frightening. Is everyone in the White House, using MJ? It would explain a lot of their actions

No Deal: W.H.O. Fails to Secure Global Pandemic Treaty

by Simon Kent May 26, 2024, Breitbart News

No deal. That was the message for World Health Organization (W.H.O.) chief Tedros Adhanom Ghebreyesus on Friday after his proposed global pandemic treaty was rejected after two years of closed-door meetings in Geneva, Switzerland.

AP reports Roland Drience, co-chair of W.H.O.'s negotiating board for the agreement, acknowledged countries were unable to deliver an agreed proposal. W.H.O. had hoped a final draft treaty could be agreed on at its yearly meeting of health ministers starting Monday in Geneva.

“We are not where we hoped we would be when we started this process,” he said, adding that finalizing an international agreement on how to respond to a pandemic was critical “for the sake of humanity” even as a host of countries disagreed with the basic principle that unelected, unaccountable, health bureaucrats could somehow decide major global decisions on government policies.

Addressing a sullen final day of negotiations, the W.H.O. chief insisted, “This is not a failure.”

“We will try everything — believing that anything is possible — and make this happen because the world still needs a pandemic treaty,” Tedros said. “Because many of the challenges that caused a serious impact during COVID-19 still exist.”

Despite the desire of W.H.O. career bureaucrats to push ahead with the scheme, Britain's department of health had already said it would only agree to an accord if it adhered to British national interest and sovereignty.

Tedros Adhanom Ghebreyesus is an Ethiopian public health official, researcher, diplomat. he earned a Doctor of Philosophy in community health from the University of Nottingham for research on the effects of dams on malaria transmission in the Tigray region

Earlier this month, U.S. Republican senators wrote to the Biden administration, arguing the draft treaty focused on issues like “shredding intellectual property rights” and “supercharging the WHO.” They urged Biden not to sign off.
